Change in Income - Appeal 2021-2022

Students and families who have experienced a significant decrease in household income (earned by you, your spouse, or your parents) from the reported 2019 income information provided on the FAFSA can submit an appeal for reconsideration of eligibility for aid. Please note: the appeal for reconsideration does not guarantee a change in eligibility will occur.

An appeal (along with the required documentation) should be submitted AFTER your 2021-2022 FAFSA has been completed.

Please indicate the applicable change in income:

- ❑ Unemployment
- ❑ Loss of supporting family member
- ❑ One time distribution of funds from pension plan, insurance settlement, etc.
- ❑ Unusual out-of-pocket medical payments
- ❑ Private elementary/secondary tuition expenses

Required documentation to prove change in income:

- A written statement outlining the circumstances regarding change in income.
- Tax information from 2019 (must include one of the following)
  - Copy of first two pages of 2019 tax return
  - Entire 2019 tax return transcript
  - Use of the IRS Data Retrieval Tool on FAFSA
- Supporting documentation to validate the change in income. Possible supporting documents could be:
  - Signed copy of 2020 Tax Return
  - Statement of termination (with dates) from prior employer
  - Documentation of unemployment benefits
  - Medical out-of-pocket expenses (1040 Schedule A)
  - Copy of legal documentation proving change in marital status
  - Statement from private school showing tuition costs for the 2020-2021 school year.
